A. Purpose and Description of Services

1. Introduction

The California Institute for Regenerative Medicine ("CIRM") was established in early 2005 by the passage of Proposition 71, the California Stem Cell Research and Cures Act. The statewide ballot measure, which provided $3 billion in funding for stem cell research at California universities and research institutions, was approved by California voters on November 2, 2004, and created CIRM as a new state agency responsible for making and managing grants and loans for stem cell research, research facilities and other vital research opportunities. The mission of CIRM is to support and advance stem cell research and regenerative medicine under the highest ethical and medical standards for the discovery and development of cures, therapies, diagnostics and research technologies to relieve human suffering from chronic disease and injury. To date, the CIRM governing board has approved 279 grants totaling more than $693 million, making CIRM the largest source of funding for embryonic and pluripotent stem cell research in the world. For more information about CIRM please visit our website at www.cirm.ca.gov.

CIRM is a relatively small agency (with about 34 employees) with a big mission. CIRM is requesting a proposal from companies who will work with CIRM's Science Office to coordinate multiple events within the scientific community.

The company that is selected must be technically and professionally capable of providing the services in all subject areas described in Section A, Item 2, Scope of Work and meet the Minimum Qualifications for Proposers in Section B. The company must be free from actual conflicts of interest not only at the time of selection, but also throughout the term of the contract.

CIRM expects the chosen company will be able to start as soon as possible immediately after the execution of the contract. CIRM anticipates entering into a three-year contract starting in May 2009 through May 2012 with a possible extension and a 30-day cancellation clause by CIRM.
